

Another positive development in the drive to reduce emissions is taking place in the American trucking industry. Saddle Creek Transportation in Florida is converting its pollution-belching diesel fleet to one run by clean-burning natural gas.