

Johan Norberg stands in a field in Pennsylvania farm beneath which energy entrepreneurs want to build hydraulic fracturing – or fracking – wells to extract an abundant Made-in-America energy supply: natural gas. Critics worry there may be untold environmental consequences.