

Swedish test results have fallen, partially due to a culture of student-controlled public schools. Private schools, like this one featured in School Inc., are looking to break that trend by returning to a more traditional model.